PICKLED EGGS.—At the season of the year when eggs are plentiful, boil some four or six dozen in a capacious saucepan until they become quite hard. Then, after carefully removing the shells, lay them in large mouthed jars, and pour over them sealing vinegar, well seasoned with whole pepper, allspice, a few rases of ginger, and a few cloves or garlic. When cold, bring down closely, and in a month they are fit for use. Where eggs are plentiful, the above pickle is by no means expensive.

How to Save your Skin.—It consists merely in mixing together tallow and common soap, in the proportion of two parts of the former to one of the latter, and applying the preparation resulting from it to the soles of the boots; so much of it as the leather will absorb. A substantial farmer desiderates that this little receipt alone has been worth to him more than the price of five years subscription to a newspaper.

WHITE CAKE.—One cup of melted butter, one cup and a half of white sugar. Stir the butter and sugar to neither. Half a cup of sweet milk, two teaspoons full of essence of lemon. White of four eggs, beat to a froth. Stir in their sufficient to form thick batter, and bake in a quick oven.

A TEMPERANCE JOKE.

Joe Harris was a whole sauced, merry fellow, and very fond of a glass. After living in New Orleans for many years, he came to the conclusion of visiting an old uncle, away up in Massachusetts, whom he had not seen for many years. Now there is a duller ease between New Orleans and Massachusetts, in regard to the use of ardent spirits, and when Joe arrived there, he found the people all can mad about temperance he left bad, thinking with the old song that "keeping the spirits up by pouring the spirits down," was one of the best ways to make time pass, and began to fear that he was in a pickle. But on the morning after his arrival, the old man and his son being out at work, his uncle came to him and said:

"Joe, you have been living in the South, and we doubt, are in the habit of taking something to drink about eleven o'clock. Now I keep some here for medical purposes, but let me know it, as my husband wants to set the boys in good example."

Joe promised and thinking he would get no more that day, took as he expressed it, a "beater." After he had walked out to the stable, who should he meet but his uncle.

"Well, Joe," says he, "I expect you are accustomed to drink something in New Orleans, but you find us all temperance here, and for the sake of my sons, I don't let them know that I have any brandy about; but I just keep a little out here for my consumption. Will you accept a little?"

Joe signified his readiness, and took another big horn. Then continuing his walk, he came to where the boys were mauling rails. After conversing awhile, one of his cousins said—

"Joe, I expect you would like to have drink, and as the old folks are down on liquor, we keep some out here to help us on with our work."

Out came the bottle and down they sat, and he says that by the time they went home to dinner, he was as tight as he could be, and all from visiting a temperance family.

YELLOW CAKE.—One cup of melted butter and one of good brown sugar, stirred together. Half a cup of sweet milk, two teaspoons full of cream of tartar, and one of soda. York of four eggs. Flavor with nutmeg. Add sufficient flour to form a thick batter.

"SEND US ONE OF THEM THINGS."—A prominent hardware house in Cincinnati received, a day or two since, the following order:

—, Sangamon Co., Ill., Mar. 18.
— & Co.: Sirs—Send us one of their d—d things that makes such a hell of a noise about a hotel. We've opened a new hotel here last week, and want to make as much noise as anybody.

P.S.—A feller here says they call them gongs in Terre Haute.

CORPORATE MARRIAGE RITES.—In marriage they who have most to bear require the greatest amount of love. A woman with a jealous, suspicious, sullen, and a fretful husband requires a heart full of love, otherwise she loses that love which she has; and a man with an impious, contradictory temperament of a wife, requires quite as much to keep up the romance of affection; but woman in general, as she has less power, requires more affection, and we believe this is the rule; the contrary is the exception.

White Cake.—One cup of melted butter, one cup and a half of white sugar.
Stir the butter and sugar to neither. Half a cup of sweet milk, two teaspoons full of essence of lemon. White of four eggs, beat to a froth. Stir in their sufficient to form thick batter, and bake in a quick oven.

How to Save your Skin.—It consists merely in mixing together tallow and common soap, in the proportion of two parts of the former to one of the latter, and applying the preparation resulting from it to the soles of the boots; so much of it as the leather will absorb.
